Michigan State University’s Project 60/50 provided a wonderful opportunity to capture stories and conversations between young people and an elder in their lives through the “Across Generations Videofest.” The project invited children and young adults to submit a five minute videotaped conversation with an important elder in their lives. Twelve videos will be featured in this evening’s program.